

Girl Scout Displays To Tell Year's Story

More than 100 Girl Scout troops in Yonkers will tell the story of a year's accomplishments in displays and demonstrations Saturday at Saunders Trades and Technical High School.

The exposition, climaxing Girl Scout Week and serving as the annual Juliette Low celebration of the movement's founder 47 years ago, will be staged by senior, intermediate and brownie units.

About 2,000 girls and 600 adult leaders are enrolled in the Yonkers scouting program. The exhibits will show the troops' skills in arts and crafts and nature study. Sewing projects will be displayed in the tables they have made for the various Branches of the Needlework Guild of America.

Community service projects will be a highlight of the exposition, designed to show the public how "You Can Count On Her," national theme of the birthday observance. There also will be displays pertaining to camping, international programs, water safety and the annual cookie sale now under way.

The board of directors of the Girl Scout Council will have its own exhibit. Some troop projects will be represented by poster displays.

During the exposition, which is open to the public from 10:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., there will be continuous performances of songs, dances, puppet shows, fashion shows, safety drills and playlets.

Mrs. Morgan Dillon, council president, and board members will greet city officials, civic leaders and representatives from agencies the Girl Scouts have assisted during the last year.

Another highlight will be a wishing well in which donations will be dropped for the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. Each summer girls from various countries are sent to the Scout Chalet international gathering in Switzerland to learn about each other's nations, customs, art and education.

Yonkers Man In Scotland Clad Not In Plaid Of Clan

By MYRON S. WALDMAN
Martin Walker, twenty-one, of 9 Lawrence St., has returned to Scotland for a visit, clad not in the plaid costume of his clan but in the somewhat subdued green uniform of the U. S. Army.

Despite his non-Scottish attire (but quite correct, according to Army Military Police), Martin was greeted with open arms by friends, relatives and newsmen in his native town of Dundee.

It wasn't exactly Martin's physical presence that brought out the local reporters in droves but rather his fine tenor voice, which he used to advantage on Scottish television, at the Dundee Palace theater at various teen-age dance centers in the town.

Came Here At Eleven
His mother, Mrs. Edith Walker of 7 Wilkie La., Dundee, sent Martin, her oldest son, to Yonkers when the serviceman was eleven. Here, he lived with his aunt, Mrs. Lavin Burnside on Lawrence St. Two years after he came to the U. S., he was on Broadway, appearing in the musical comedy, "Three Wishes for Jamie."

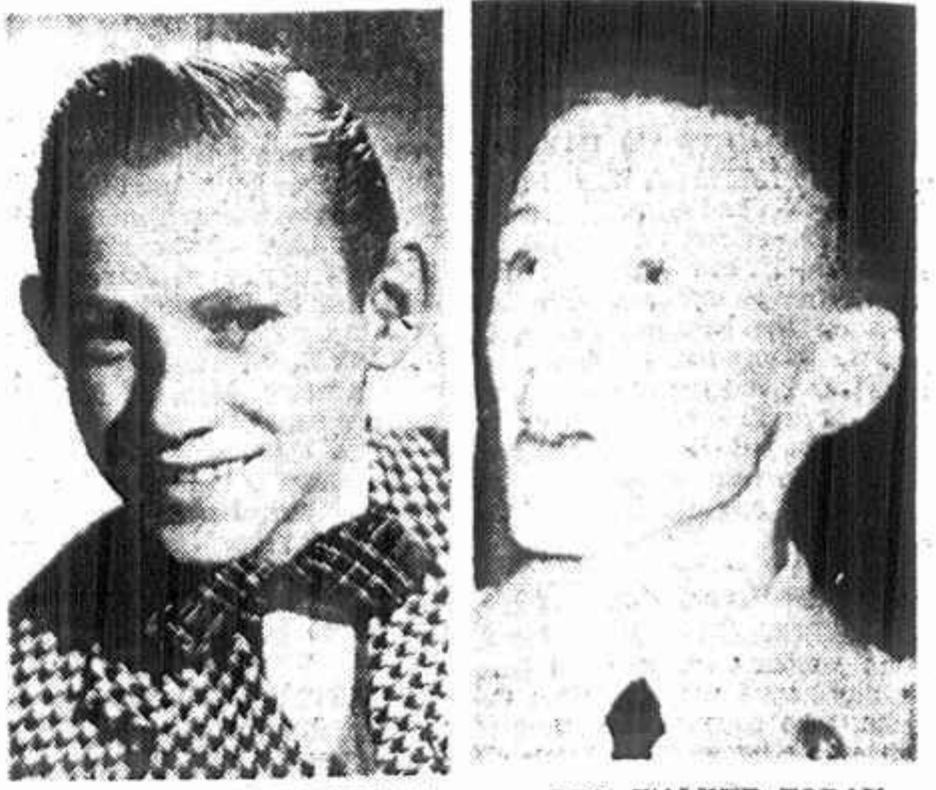

This stage appearance also marked the singer's professional entry into show business. At fifteen, Martin was an award-winner on the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts Program. Later, he was a guest star on television shows of Eddie Fisher and Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

Martin, who attended Yonkers High School, then toured the country, singing at night clubs and hotels. He has performed at the Hotel Commodore and the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City and also at the Bostonian Hotel in Boston.

In Entertainment Unit
In April, 1957, Martin was drafted. Six months later, he found himself in Germany and transferred to the Special Services Corps. As part of the Army's entertainment corps, Martin toured Germany with Gary Crosby, appearing in various excursions.

During his leave, he went to Dundee where he saw his mother, two younger brothers and his aunt and uncle. His father, George Walker, flew with the RAF, and died in a military hospital in Scotland during World War II.

While serving in the Army, Pfc. Walker became a U. S. citizen. When his military stint ends in April, he intends to return to America to pursue his stage career.

U.S. Financing For Schools Draws Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bond consultant has cautioned that the administration's school construction aid-proposal might hurt some public bonds now on the market.

Edward Edelman, Scarsdale, N. Y., a consultant on state and municipal finance gave the testimony in answering questions before a house education subcommittee.

Edelman took no specific stand on pending bills.

Favored Class
He said the one recommended by the administration, to help needy districts pay interest and principal on bonds would create a new favored class of bonds.

They would have federal and state government guarantees and would be tax exempt. Edelman said that would put some present top quality bonds at a lower level.

Asked if he felt the administration's approach is not feasible, Edelman said he feels that way and "so do quite a lot of people in Wall Street."

Levitt's Stand
Edelman read a statement from Arthur Levitt, state comptroller of New York, which said of the administration's plan:

"It actually provides an expensive plan for piling up future interest charges, while giving a very modest amount of aid for construction."

New Drug In Mental Ills Held Better Than Shocks

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP) — Experiments with more than 2,000 patients show that a new drug may have distinct advantages in treating the mentally ill, a University of Maryland scientist reports.

Dr. John C. Krantz, one of the developers of the chemical "indoklon," said use of the drug eliminates many of the undesirable effects associated with electric shock treatments. Shock for many years has been used in treating the acutely depressed.

Dr. Krantz discussed recent studies of the new drug at a meeting of scientists at the Army Chemical Center here. He is a professor of pharmacology at the university's School of Medicine.

Many mental patients are apprehensive over the use of shock-treatments, he said, because of possible emotional stress and bone fractures which often result.

"We have found that indoklon has greater patient acceptability and causes less emotional trauma afterward than electric shock," he said.

The new drug normally is administered by inhalation through a face mask, Dr. Krantz said, but University of Maryland scientists are attempting to develop a method of applying it through intravenous injection.

Auto In Tow Causes Wreck

NORTH ELMSFORD — The weight of a car being towed on the Saw Mill River Parkway caused two cars to tumble 30 feet down an embankment Saturday, injuring one man seriously.

Parkway Police Patrolman Malcolm Brown said a car driven north by Rayfield Pearson forty-one, of Poughkeepsie, was towing a car carrying George Bynes, thirty-nine, of Poughkeepsie. The crash occurred at 4:35 p. m. on a downgrade almost a mile south of the East View railroad bridge in Greenburgh.

Pearson, a cook, said that the heavy weight of the car he was towing forced his car off the road. Then the tow bar broke. Bynes, a mechanic, was admitted to Graesslands Hospital, Valhalla, suffering possible dislocations of his right leg and arm. Pearson was given a summons for illegally towing a car on the parkway.

Leader Tells E.O.K.A. To End Struggle

NICOSIA (AP) — The leader of EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground, finally told his followers today to lay down their arms and unite behind Archbishop Makarios in the building of the Republic of Cyprus.

"I am obliged to order the cessation of the struggle," said Col. George Grivas in a mimeographed leaflet distributed from his secret hideout on Cyprus. He expressed disappointment Cyprus had not won union with Greece—EOKA's original aim—but said independence "is preferable to national disruption."

Grivas, who is fifty-two, told his followers he was retiring and would not take part in politics or public life, either in Cyprus or in Greece.

Remains in Hiding
Although he remained in hiding, Grivas was expected to fly to Athens in the next few days. The British government, which formerly had a price of $28,000 on his head, had promised him safe conduct to Greece.

The guerrilla chief indicated he would not return to Cyprus, his homeland. He said he would "follow anxiously from afar the steps of my suffering and bloodstained motherland."

"Now we must have discipline," he told his people. "Forget the all of the united around the Elinarch (Makarios) who is today the symbol of unity and strength and help him in his difficult task." The proclamation was signed "EOKA the leader Digenis," the alias Grivas borrowed from a legendary Greek hero.

Signed Feb. 19

The little leaflet was the first word from Grivas on the peace agreement signed by Britain, Greece, Turkey and Cypriot political leaders in London Feb. 19. His approval of the pact had been expected, but tension had been growing in the absence of word from him. EOKA's guns had been silent since Grivas proclaimed a truce last Christmas.

Conestogas Set Up Right-Hand Drive

WASHINGTON — The old Conestoga wagon seems to have had a big influence on the American custom of driving vehicles on the right-hand side of the road, according to the National Geographic Society.

The society reports that Conestoga teamsters usually rode the left-wheel horse, walked at the left of the horses, or manned the "lazy board"—a sliding oak plank from which the brake could be operated between the left wheels.

Later vehicles tended to follow deep ruts of the heavy freight carriers. As early as 1787, Pennsylvania legalized right-hand
